

Letter of recommendation

Linda Brandenstein has been employed by Surgilūm for over one year. She came to us as an intern last fall and I have had the privilege of watching her develop as a leader; she takes initiative with very little direction and is quite capable of accomplishing any task that is asked of her. She is intelligent, has a strong work ethic, is driven to excellence, and is a kind, generous person.

Most recently, as president of a small medical device start up, my son had a very serious injury which caused me to be out of the office for quite some time. Linda effectively completed and launched our Facebook page. She has also worked diligently on our website, which will be live soon. She has her own ideas, and I'm sure could quite easily run her own company.

Linda is also a fun person to be around. In a small work environment, interactions with peers plays a major role in the dynamics of the company. Linda is a favorite among co-workers, with a quick wit and an endearing smile. This has also helped her as a part of our sales team. I have taken Linda to two international trade shows, where her multilingual abilities have helped us immensely. Our international distribution partners quickly learned that Linda was the one that they wished to communicate with!

We will genuinely miss Linda. She has been an asset to Surgilūm and a friend to all of us. She has taken some of our staff out deep sea fishing and always brings in some catch to share! Linda enjoys life and is quite capable of almost anything. I would highly recommend her for a fast paced, energetic position where she can flourish.
